Mr. Holcomb Preached A Great Sermon Tuesday Night.

NO SENSATIONALISM.

First Call For Persons Answered by Many Standing.

Notwithstanding the unfavorable weather that has prevailed since the Holcomb meetings began at the Methodist church Sunday morning full houses have greeted the evangelist every night. The morning services have all been well attended and deep interest has been manifested from the start.

Before beginning his sermon Tuesday night, Mr. Holcomb spoke at some length as to the duty of business men closing their places of business and allowing all employees a chance of attending morning services. He related instances where this had been done at other places with wonderful results for good. He made an indirect appeal to the merchants of this city to do the same thing.

He then asked Mr. Smoot to sing the last song that Sam Jones ever heard. It was at the Jones-Holcomb meeting at Oklahoma City, Mr. Jones starting home and dying suddenly in a Pullman car. Mr. Smoot sang the song with great effect.

Mr. Holcomb then began a most powerful sermon. It was entirely free from sensationalism. The evangelist was so intensely in earnest that everything that might provoke even a smile was omitted. For one hour he held up before his audience the sinfulness of breaking God's laws. He addressed his remarks first to the people in the church who are living in sin and believe that there is no penalty in violating God's laws as to the right and pure living. They say they are "getting all right and are faithful in their attendance, and all that, when some of them are violating God's laws. They think they are "better than the fellow outside the church, when they are as guilty as he." They do not care about death and judgment and hell, but you will, sometime. All civil laws and ordinances have a penalty for violation, but some people think there is no penalty for violating God's laws. Whoever heard of a code of laws without penalties? Suppose that the papers should give publicity to the fact that ordinances of the city of Hopkinsville and the laws of this State had no penalty for violation, what would be the result? Immediately the thugs, murderers and thieves of Chicago would rush down here and soon there would be nothing left. They would murder and steal and burn up everything. Anarchy would have full play and your town would cease to exist.

He said that the sinner in the church and the sinner out of it are the same in the sight of God. Some of the church members get into the church to hide their immortality. The trouble with the church today is that so many of its members are just like those who are not in the church—they believe that God will not enforce the penalty due for sin. Some of them say that God is too merciful and loving to send a man to endless punishment for violating his commandments, and yet God says "the wages of sin is death."

There is no difference between the sinner in the church and the sinner out of it—they are the same in the eyes of God. Sin is sin, and if God never said "Thou Shalt Not" it would be just as wrong to kill or steal or commit adultery. But God has said "Thou Shalt Not" and the violations of his will, in the great penalty. There are men in the church who lie and cheat and swear and commit adultery and drink just like the men out of it. There is no difference—sometimes you cannot tell by their lives whether they are in the church or not.

The great fact today is that men in the church and out of it whitewash sin so that they do not look upon sin as being sin, and go down to their graves believing that God is so forbearing and loves men so much that he will not punish them. A thief is a thief, a libertine is a libertine, a drunkard is a drunkard, a gambler is a gambler, in the church as well as out of it—there is no difference in the eyes of God, and if they do not change will suffer the punishment and for their sins.

The sinner in the church and out of it will both go down to an everlasting hell unless he repents and accepts salvation and regeneration through Christ. "All have sinned and come short of the glory of God."

Men who regard not God's laws care nothing for your ordinances for closing the saloons on Sunday? They whitewash your laws and God's laws until they do not see the hideousness of sin as God sees it. They see that God is just intellectually, but do not believe he will punish them for their sin. They see him as a weak, back-boneless something, sitting on his throne, but can't see that he must be just to himself. But he will punish them if he has to make a new hell to hold them and keep them forever and forever.

The sinner in the church talks too much. He wants to whitewash his sin, and when he has to make excuses for his way of living his mouth opens as wide as a bullfrog's, from ear to ear. What else does God's law do for us besides showing what sin is? It picks up the man who has blistered his heart and conscience and leads him to Christ, and he is justified by faith in Him. God has done everything he can do for man, his salvation all rests in himself by accepting Christ. God's law, which is our schoolmaster, shows us what sin is and tells us what the penalty is, but it can't save us—we must accept Christ, the propitiation for our sin.

Tuesday night was the first meeting at which an invitation had been extended for those who wanted an interest in the prayers of God's people to manifest it by rising from their seats. Mr. Holcomb said about two dozen had responded. He then offered a short but fervent prayer for them and pronounced the benediction. The indications all point to a most successful meeting.

Death of Mrs. King.

Mrs. Dr. L. A. King passed away after her home in Henderson last Monday night, after a lingering illness. She was a daughter of Mrs. James Cate and a sister of Mrs. J. H. Cate, of this city. Both of them were with her when the end came.

Unpopular Varieties.

WITH all the strife and struggle for new breeds and new varieties of the old breeds we are apt to forget that there are several breeds and varieties that are all that either fancy or utility can demand and are yet susceptible to improvement. While none of the varieties are perfect it is time that some are nearer the ideal demanded by the Standard than others. Many of the unpopular varieties are worthy of our best efforts toward their improvement. There are apparent reasons why some varieties have fallen from public favor, but there are some that have real merit and it is impossible to make a guess why they are not being bred more.

We can say that the Dominique has been replaced by the Barred Plymouth Rock, a more symmetrical built fowl, of greater merit as a flesh and egg producer—a variety just as well omitted from the Standard. We very seldom see the Java now except at the fall shows. I know of only one flock in the Central States. This man has bred them for a number of years, now alone, formerly side by side with other varieties. He claims they are all that could be asked for as a utility fowl. The Asiatics, with the exceptions of the Light Brahma and Black Langshan, are a lacking factor at most shows. There never has been much claimed for them, except as a fancier's fowl, but as a fancy bird either of the several varieties will give the breeder all the grief he wants to produce specimens that are right. In the crosses of the Light Brahmas and Black Langshans they cannot be called real popular birds, but the fact remains that better birds are bred now than ever before. Frizzles, Rumpless and Silkies are varieties that the writer could never see a reason for existing. We breed Silkies for a number of years, using them as foster mothers for pheasant and quail, but never could create a real demand for the birds, except among the fair followers.

The Ancona is another rare variety. I saw a good-sized flock of good ones several flocks of them—a few days ago at one of those little towns which you can reach by rail in the early morning and can't get out of until late night. The fancier's yard was the only notable spot in this deserted minister's town and it did much to pass the long hours away. This variety is susceptible to the influence of skillful breeding and should be seen oftener and in larger quantities. They should appeal to the Leghorn breeders. The Black Wyandotte is a fowl of merit and can be used more frequently on the egg farm. They are as handsome as any black fowl and I believe throw less purple than any of the other black varieties. It seems to the writer that if the Wyandotte lovers that live in cities breed them one season they would continue to do so, at least as long as they favored the Wyandotte shape. On the farm of a prominent breeder, who keeps all varieties of Wyandottes and Orpingtons, and who also keeps an accurate and trustworthy record of his fowls, this variety outlast all other varieties of both breeds, all being housed and fed the same.

Now the Blacks are not this breeder's favorite and if there had been any handicap given in the matter of house and yard the Blacks would not have been the favored ones. It seems to the writer that there would be a good deal of pleasure and some profit for some of the true fanciers to take up some of these side-tracked varieties and breed them up to the state of perfection that their merits entitled them to. The writer has no objection to the newer varieties, but believes that some of the old ones are being neglected. The new varieties have merit, of course, notably the Rhode Island Reds and the Columbian, but I believe that entrance to the Standard of perfection is too easy and that the bars should be put up a little higher.—B. J. Hill in Inland Poultry Journal.

Buff Leghorns In the South.

T. T. Gardner in Poultry Digest.

ABOUT three years ago I started to breed S. C. Buff Leghorns by buying a cheap pen from a local breeder, and I thought I had the prettiest lot I ever saw. I used them as brooders last year and did not raise a good chicken from them; they all had black or white in wings or tail.

I made a mistake that many others offend by not starting with extra good stock at the beginning. It costs a little more at first, but you will soon get it back with good stock; but when you buy cheap stock you never gain much. The next year, I got rid of that pen and purchased a pen of extra fine breeders and went into the show room and beat the man I bought the first pen from all to pieces, and have been doing it ever since.

I think the Buff Leghorns are the best general purpose fowl in existence to-day, as they are very hardy, quick growers, and when grown are the greatest layers on earth. My pullets begin laying at four and a half to six months old, and keep steadily at it all through the winter. They moult early in the fall and are ready to lay again by the last of October, which makes them very profitable to me during the winter. If the little chickens' wings are clipped about every two weeks until they are about six weeks old they will grow very fast and make a fine broiler chicken, as by clipping the wings it stops the feather growth and strengthens the body more.

I put out two broods last year at the same time; one was Barred Plymouth Rocks and the other Buff Leghorns. I kept the Leghorns' wings cut and at six weeks the Leghorns were a trifle larger than the Rocks. I have tried the Leghorns with a number of other breeds at the same time, and they always do better for me than any of the others. I am breeding Buff Wyandottes now, the Leghorns, and if I have to choose I would keep the Leghorns, as I believe there is more money in a good strain of Buff Leghorns than any other breed in the Standard. This year I expect to raise several hundred birds, mostly Leghorns. Some claim that to get eggs in winter from Leghorns you have to have a very warm house. Our winters here in Kentucky are very severe and I have got eggs every day during winter when it was cold enough in the house to freeze the water solid in the fountains. I would open the windows every day for four or five hours and let them have plenty of air, and I did not have a frosted comb in the lot.

If one wants to start in the poultry business, and wants to get a breed of fowls that will stay with them always, they will make no mistake in starting with Buff Leghorns, providing they get a good stock or eggs from reliable breeder, and then join the Buff Leghorn Club, they will be on the right road to success. I hope that every breeder of Buff Leghorns will join our club and help to make the buffs the greatest fowl in the world, as they are gradually coming to the front and in a little time will be known as the greatest, prettiest and most profitable fowl in the world. HER CHALLENGE

By OWEN OLIVER.

(Copyright, by Joseph H. Fowler.)

The Spur mountains belonged to the Macdonalds, and the Spurr mountains to the McAllisters. The valley between them was no man's land, for they were too busy fighting over it to keep out the thieves from the hills.

Neither boasted long of advantage, till the day when Robert McAllister, seventh of the name, grew old. Then an ill fate happened to the clan. His son slipped over a crack and was killed. Since Robert McAllister was too old for arms, the name of the clan grew small, and the more daring of the tribesmen took service under the king of France, for Mary McAllister had the spirit of a man, but only the body of a maid.

Alan, the young chief of the Macdonalds, had won great renown in arms, and he had the way of leading men, and those who are born for leading never lack men to lead. He drove the McAllisters from the valley, and built little fortresses there to hold them, and when he had held it for a full year he sent a message to Robert McAllister, saying:

"From Alan Macdonald to Robert McAllister, most courteous greetings. The fortune of war has given us advantage which you cannot resist. When strife is useless, strife should cease. If you will own that the valley is mine I shall be honored by your doing it. It is said that good foes make good friends, and I am wishing to try, for there is none who honor your name more than I."

Robert McAllister, being a wise old man, was minded to consent.

"It is a generous offer from a gallant enemy," he said.

But his daughter pleaded with him in her dead brother's name and prevailed. So he made answer to her:

"Robert McAllister sends all courteous greetings to Alan Macdonald. The fortunes of the moment challenge. For those who come after I hold to what I have held, and my forefathers before me. If our numbers are lessened our courage is not."

There came another message from Alan Macdonald.

"If you rely on courage, let one of your tribe meet me in single combat, the valley to belong to the victor's clan. Alan Macdonald."

Many of the McAllisters volunteered for the fight, but there was no great man of arms among them, and the elders would not consent.

"It were giving Macdonald the land," they declared. "There is no man in Scotland who can stand before him. For he was a large, powerful man, and withal quick as smaller men are; and he had a curious cunning of fence which he had learned in France."

So they sent no answer at all, and Mary McAllister looked herself in her room for two days, and brooded over the dishonor of her clan. Presently she made a deep plan, as women will, and rode out in the gray dawn to the castle on the Spur mountains; and when Macdonald's outposts challenged her in the valley, she answered:

"I am Mary McAllister, and I have come to answer the challenge of your chief." Then she went on to make to conduct her the easiest way to the castle, and when the chief warrior came to the gate and asked her pleasure, she made him the same answer as before.

"I bring to you an equal challenge." She looked him straight in the eyes. "If your challenge is such as a man may accept," he answered steadily, "I accept it unheeded."

She put her hand in her bosom and drew out two small phials of colored glass, with stoppers of dull wrought gold.

"Will you drink a toast with me?" she asked.

"Surely," he answered. "If it is such as a man may, but he looked at the strange vessels and liked them not."

"It is an innocent toast enough, and harmless—if you drink the one."

"And if I drink the other?"

"It is only death!"

"There are worse things," he told her. She pushed the phials smilingly towards him.

"Choose. I will drain the other."

"And then?"

"One of us will walk the valley, and the other will feel no loss."

He took up the phial and held them in the sunlight that streamed through an open window on to the floor.

It was awesome, he thought, that death should come in such a guise; and he was angry with himself, because he feared that he feared.

"Dare you not?" she asked, tauntingly.

"Aye," he said, "I dare. Give me which you will."

He should have known Alan Macdonald looked him at her, and saw that truly she was passing fair.

"You are a very brave man, Alan Macdonald," she told him in a slow, deep voice. "Dare me now to go?"

So he led her to the gateway in silence, and held her foot when she mounted.

"Dare me now to go?" he asked under his breath. She looked down at him with her great blue eyes.

"You," she whispered hoarsely, "I hold you for death!"

Then she rode away into the mist that hung over the valley below, and he stood after her till she was lost to view.

There was never her like in all Scotland," he vowed. "She would have drunk her death."

"Aye," said a sage, who was standing near him. "She would have taken it, and—perchance she had more of the poison at home!"

The young chief stared at him for a moment, then gave a great shout.

"My horse! Bring my horse!"

He ran to meet them as they came.

"I Love You."

leaped on his great black charger and rode down into the mist as if his senses were not in him.

From the foot of the mountains to the castle high above, the bridge path runs a long way round; and between bend and bend lies a great ravine that neither man nor beast had crossed, it was so narrow from side to side.

The edges overhang so that the bottom is not seen; and when a stone falls one grows tired of listening for the crash of the crash below.

Alan Macdonald rode straight for the castle. When he came to the edge he looked till he found a plot of level grass, and there he reined his horse for a moment, and nuzzled his neck and whispered in his ear.

"Now, boy, now," he cried. The horse sprang forward over the even ground, snatched himself together on the edge of the abyss and flew into the air.

"Live together or die together," said Alan Macdonald under his breath.

Then he saw his horse falling short of the black rock—felt him strike against it—was hurled forward with a crash, and lay on his back.

When he found the world again he was lying in some long grass, he thought, and there was something yet softer under his head.

When he found the world again he was lying in some long grass, he thought, and there was something yet softer under his head.

"You must not move," said a very gentle voice. "You are badly hurt, very badly, I fear."

"I do not fear for myself," he answered. "Only are you Mary McAllister?"

"Yes," he tried to look round at her. "Only he still," she entreated.

"I have said my life to carry you. They will come soon."

"How—did it happen?"

"They were hanging by a dead branch. I—I lifted you here."

"I owe my life to you," he smiled as if the thought pleased him. "My foot!"

"I do not think," she whispered. "We are foes any more. You must not move."

"You saved my life."

"You had saved mine."

"You were not going to take the poison at home?"

"Yes," she said, "I was."

"You will not now?—for the love of Heaven, dear lady?"

"Why did you take the leap?"

"He called faintly. "For you!"

She looked right into his eyes. "Why do you care so much for my life?"

Because he was dared, the fine speeches that he had tried to fashion would not shape themselves to an end. So he said simply, "I love you."

"Then," she said, "since you love my life, keep it, and do with it as you will." And he turned to look at her without a man at the gate.

And because he was so helpless and his eyes blinded with love, he bent down his head and let him kiss her lips.

"To live together or die together," she vowed.

And when Alan Macdonald was released, the clans went down from the mountains, with white favors in their helmets, and married them in the valley between.

And so the world's unhealthiest city, All Aroy's sewage is thrown into the streets.

The Weather

FOR KENTUCKY—Cold wave
Thursday.

Gov. Matus of Venezuelan province and several other men were killed in a fight at a political meeting.

Gov. Swettenham, of Jamaica, has apologized to Admiral Davis for his insulting letter and may be allowed to hold on.

The wife of Henry Estes, of Owensboro, who gave birth to twins
three years ago, last week presented her husband with three fine girls.
The couple have six other children.

The river at Louisville is back in its banks and the flood sufferers are busy cleaning out the deposit of mud and moving back into their houses
as rapidly as possible.

Mauna Loa, on the island of Hawaii, is in a state of eruption. Its base is fifty miles in diameter and its height 13,676 feet. The volcano's eruptions are never accompanied by loss of life or property.

Mr. Loving W. Gaines, for many years editor of the Todd County Progress, is no longer connected with that paper. He has secured control of the plant of the Leader, at Bowling Green and will engage in the newspaper business in that city.
He has already moved to Bowling Green.

The question of who will preside
at the trial of the Caleb Powers cases, which is to be called next week at Georgetown, is exciting much interest among those connected with the case. Judge Robbins, who was appointed to try the case probably will resign. A special term will be called for the trial.

Hon. Jno. F. Bible, of India, Mich.,
whose wife was formerly Miss Mary Bell, of this city, is being urged by his friends to go to the race track
Congress to succeed William Allen Smith, who has been elected to the Senate. The district is Republican but Mr. Bible possesses many elements of strength and his friends believe he could redeem the district.

Miss Mary Ann Casey, who was born in Morgantown, Ky., in 1910, died in St. Louis this week. Miss Casey was one of the belles of Washington society in the years before the civil war and often related how President Buchanan courted her and made her a proposal of marriage which she refused. Her reason for refusing the man who afterwards became President was that she was in love with her cousin. Her father approved the match and she never married. President Buchanan died
an old bachelor.

Hopkinsville League Will Open Friday Night

Every lover of good athletic should not fail to attend the opening games of the city league Friday night. A double header will be played and both games for one admission will be charged. The game will be called at 8 o'clock as it will take some time to play both of them.

The College has two fast teams
while Co. "D" has a strong and well trained team that will make the others hustle. The High School also has the fastest team they have had for years and promise to make a good showing in the fast company they are getting into.

Games will be played at Co. D's
Armory.

The Old Kentucky Home.

I come to fetch you a message from God's country, and as the walking lady in Proctor Knott's delighful story declared, "I mean to fulfill my promise to the people of this village at the risk of my life." Don't forget the homely, the home-run sources from which we draw our inspiration and our life! Don't forget Aunt Betty's Christian preachments, nor Cousin Polly's complaint and wisdom; for the bitterness and the bitterness of Kentucky's fame, the verdure and the bloom of Kentucky manhood and womanhood, were, and are, and will ever remain, the Holy Bible, the old field school, the patriotic call to battle and the song of the Greenwood tree. From Colonel Watterson's New York Speech.

CHAMPION DOGS

That are Being Bred in Hopkinsville Kennel.

The closing of the field trials of hunting dogs has no doubt been of more interest than any previous trials
held in America for many seasons past.

The championship ran (but not finished on account of bad weather)
at Robinson, Ill., was completed a few days since at Grand Junction, Tenn. Trial was pulled off on one of America's best hunting preserves owned by Avert & Dinear.

Drawn for the 2nd series of this great race were such world renowned dogs as Chap, "Jessie Redfield,"
"Count Gladstone," owned by one of Chicago's wealthy stock yard men;
Mr. Jessie Sherwood and "Miss Ransom," owned by Tom Edwards, of Cleveland, Ohio, who puts so many good ones to the front. But there appeared a dark horse, one to add honor and fame to his noted ire, "Count Whitestone." This dark horse, "Prince Whitestone," was known only by his breeding, but being by perhaps America's best sire
he was feared by his opponents and as the old saying goes, "He is still running." For speed, stamina, bird sense, etc., he is to-day the most wonderful, most phenomenal dog that has ever won this much coveted championship. But his owner, T.
Pace, of Jellico, Tenn., as it would appear, is hard to satisfy, and not being satisfied with the honors for his dog, enters him a few days later to run against "The Best of All" in the "National Championship," but with that same speed, stamina, style, etc., "Prince Whitestone" carried off all honors and is today known as "Champion of Champions," "Prince Whitestone."
In this latter race Kentucky loses honors to Tennessee, "Prince Whitestone" winning honors over "Green-river Kate" owned by Garnett Zorn,
of Louisville, Ky., she being acknowledged as America's best field
trial pointer bitch.

But shall Kentucky always be second? Perhaps not. In the kenels of H. P. Ware, of our city, we find perhaps one of "Count White-stone's" handsomest sons, Count Whitestone's Noble Gleam," half brother to this phenomenal dog,
"Prince Whitestone."

Mr. Ware also has a litter (full brothers to his young) out of his "Annie Gleam" bitch that are now
advertised for sale.

We have just seen check for $40
from Mr. Roy Blanke, of St. Louis, in payment for one of these puppies now but three months of age. Who knows but from one of these little ones there may be another "Prince Whitestone?"

Mr. John C. Duffy has returned from Frankfort.

HOG CHOLERA

The Problem of a Cure is Now Solved

Dr. J. H. Snoddy, of Alton, Ill., has discovered a positive cure and preventative for this terrible disease. He has had it in use for ten years and has saved millions of dollars' worth of cholera hogs for the public. The directions for its use are simple and easy to follow. Any practical farmer can stop the worst outbreak of cholera that ever came and save every hog that is able to take the treatment.

This treatment is not an expense to a farmer, because it clears his herd of every character of worm and parasite and puts them in such a thrifty condition that the extra gain they will make from the effect of this treatment will return the farmer $5 in this extra gain for every dollar's worth of the remedy used properly and right.

It is the greatest worm remedy known to medical science. It pays a farmer to keep his hogs clear of worms with it. When the hog is clear of worms and in good thrifty condition it is rather a hard matter to infect him with cholera without directly exposing him to the germ.
It pays to use the medicine whether there is any cholera around or not.

This wonderful remedy is manufactured by the Dr. J. H. Snoddy Remedy Co., Alton, Ill., and is for sale by Planters Hardware Co., incorporated, of Hopkinsville, and E.
W. Stegar & Dixon, at Masonville, Ky. Anyone calling on either of these firms can get Dr. Snoddy's free book on hog cholera. Free of charge. Every farmer should have one.

BAND CONCERT

morrow Night.

Strause's "High Art" military band is scheduled to give a grand concert at the tabernacle tomorrow night, Feb. 1st, and a lengthy program has been arranged for the oc-

Strause's band is one of the best are always of the highest class. The entertainment will begin at the usual hour.

FAMILY MONUMENT

To Be Sold By Sheriff In Family Graveyard.

What will probably be the first sale of a tombstone in a graveyard has been ordered by the judge of the Christian county court. The sale is to satisfy a judgment of the court for $55.25 in favor of Wells Bro. against D. M. Boyd. The contractors who put up the stone in the Boyd graveyard retained a lien
on the stone for the unpaid purchase money when the contract was made.
The stone is of granite, 4 feet tall and 38 inches thick. The sale of second-hand tombstones is about as unfrequent as that of second-hand coffins or cisterns.

A Wonderful Happening.

Port Byron, N. Y., has witnessed one of the most remarkable cases of healing ever recorded. Amos P.
King, of that place says: "Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured a sore on my leg with which I had suffered over 80 years. I am now eighty-five." Guaranteed to cure all sores, by R. C. Hardwick, Druggist, 25c.

Mr. J. B. Walker is getting up logs to build the "Christian County Cabin" at Jamestown. He has already secured eight or ten varieties of timber, but wants 15 more to complete his shipment, which will be made next week. The names of all those who donate logs will be recorded at the exposition. If you want to be in it, report to him at once.

Memorable Day

One of the days we remember with pleasure, as well as with profit to our health, is the one on which we became acquainted with Dr.
King's New Life Pills, the painless purifiers that cure headache and biliousness, and keep the bowels right. 25c. at R. C. Hardwick's

ABOUT BALL.

Clarksville Wants a New League and Hopeful.

A dispatch sent out from Clarksville last Monday stated that there was a probability of a movement being put on foot for the organization of a baseball league for the coming season. The plan is said to be to organize a league, of Hopkinsville, Clarksville, Bowling Green, Springfield, Henderson and Owensboro teams. We had to do without baseball all of last season in account of a smart Ale at Paducah, and no doubt an effort to organize a club of the cities named would meet with liberal encouragement here and a large patronage when the games shall be called.

Mind Meanderings.
"Can a man smoke in Heaven?"
asks a brain. Dumb, but he will in the other place.

"It's queer how a little bit of a woman can upset a seat of a chair faster than a six-foot man," says the New York Press, but it's a blamed sight queer how full they both can fill it and still have room on each side for a Teddy bear.

PHILOSOPHICAL TIP.
To grow wise is simply to cut out the things that keep you up after midnight. A good wife and a cozy pair of carpet slippers will do the rest.

ANOTHER FISH STORY.
A fish named Fletcher fisher (the play of a flourish and was pulled in to a devil fish. Now they are fishing
the future for Fletcher.

LOSE THEIR NERVE.
Some men welcome trouble.
Some men long for strife.
Somehow some men doesn't
When they get a wife.

THE DIFFERENCE.
The jacksnaw with four legs has bravely ability but the one with two has neither. (This is good, if you get it.)

REMARK.
There is only one thing more dangerous than poking a mule with a feather duster, and that is poking fun at a prospective father-in-law who can not see the joke.

NOT IN HURRY.
He who owns the coal
dumps up in the very sky.
But he who owns a wife
Never owns up to his duty.

S. L. FROGGE

Former Supt. of Schools, Victim of Paralysis.

Information was received here yesterday of the illness of Prof. S. L. Frogge, at one time County Superintendent of Public Schools. On the 17th of this month Prof. Frogge was stricken with paralysis. The stroke took effect in his lower limbs beginning at the hips. He has been in bed since the 17th and is just beginning to be able to move his legs. Prof. Frogge's many friends here will regret to hear of his illness, but hope that he may soon recover.

Long Live The King!

is the popular cry throughout European countries; while in America, the cry of the present day is "Long live Dr. King's New Discovery, King of Throat and Lung Remedies!" of which Mrs. Julia Ryder Maine, Truro, Mass., says: "It never fails to give immediate relief and to quickly cure a cough or cold." Mrs. Paine's opinion is shared by a majority of the inhabitants of this country. New Discovery cures weak lungs and sore throats after all other remedies have failed; and for coughs and colds it's the only sure cure. Guaranteed by R. C. Hardwick, Druggist, 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

Will Live Here.

The Charming Woman

s not necessarily one of perfect form and features. Many a plain woman who could never serve as an artist's model, possesses those rare qualities that all the world admires; neatness, clear eyes, clean smooth skin and that springiness of step and action that accompany good health. A physically weak woman is never attractive, not even to herself. Electric Bitters restore weak women, give strong nerves, bright eyes, smooth, velvety skin, beautiful complexion. Guaranteed at R. C. Hardwick's, Druggist, 50c.

AGED WOMAN

So Badly Burned That Death Results.

Mrs. Otto Beshears, of near Mannington, was so badly burned a few days ago, that death resulted. She was preparing breakfast and in some manner her clothes became ignited. Her husband attracted by her screams, but before he succeeded in putting out the flames she was horribly burned. Mr. Beshears was painfully burned about the hands and arms while trying to put out the fire.

Mrs. Beshears was about seventy-five years old.

Oliver Will Comply.

Oliver, of Knoxville, Tenn., who was the lowest bidder in connection with the contract for the completion of the Panama canal, has notified Secretary Taft that he would complete his contract within the ten days allowed him. He assured the Secretary that he was about to associate with him one or more responsible contractors, who he was satisfied beforehand would be satisfactory to the Secretary and the President.

TABERNACLE.

Course No 5. Monday Night Feb. 4th.

Concerning Wallace Bruce Ambary, who is to fill No. 5 of the Tabernacle course, next Monday night. Ora Samuel Gray says:

Wallace Bruce Ambary is a whole show in himself, with an orchestra thrown in. I was platform manager once of the Iowa Chautauquian for a week in July where they had a $2,500 program, including Capt. Hobson, Dr. McIntyre, Col. Bain and other stars, but Mr. Ambary was, without question, the most popular man on the list. Every time he stepped upon the platform the great audience cheered him. He was engaged for four days and held over for seven. I consider him the cleverest impersonator I ever heard and he has not even one of the symptoms of elocution about him. His art is of the Denman Thompson order, and has "Sonny Jim" of "Force" fame beaten at his own game. His "Knee Deep in June," by Riley, is more invigorating and refreshing than a Turkish bath, and a whole evening with him will bring an audience right up to the center of Conwell's "Jolly Earthquake."

BANK THAT ENJOYS GREAT POPULARITY.

One of The Most Successful In Southern Kentucky—The City Bank of Hopkinsville—Capital, $60,000. Surplus, $70,000.

The Atlanta Constitution, in a recent issue, contained the following complimentary notice concerning one of our local banks:

The City Bank of Hopkinsville takes high rank among the banking institutions of the state of Kentucky, and as a factor in the solid growth and splendid prosperity of the city of Hopkinsville it has been most potent. The Bank has a capital stock of $60,000, and a surplus, and $10,000 in excess of its capital stock, and this notwithstanding the fact that in the last ten years the bank has paid to its stockholders dividends aggregating 150 per cent, one special dividend of 50 per cent, paid entirely out of its surplus. And it has today the largest surplus in proportion to its capital of any bank in southern Kentucky, while its deposits, according to statement gotten out on December 31, 1906, were in excess of $380,000, or, to be exact, $389,678.43. The City Bank was organized in 1880, and ever since its establishment it has steadily gained both in resources and popularity. It is with commendable pride that Hopkinsville points to its City Bank today as an eminently safe, flourishing and reliable institution, ably officered and intelligently managed upon true business principles, and one which never embarks in questionable ventures of any kind.

In equipment it is thoroughly modern in every department and places the most advanced accommodations at the disposal of its customers.

Its principal correspondents are Latham, Alexander & Co., New York city; and the American National Bank of Louisville, Ky. The officers who have done so much to place the institution upon such a high plane of usefulness are: T. B. Long, president, and W. T. Tandy, cashier. The directors are as follows: W. M. Garnett, E. B. Long, F. B. Fairleigh, J. O. Cook and W. T. Tandy.

Each one paid his fine and went his way rejoicing.

DIAMOND NOT BRIGHT.

Was "Ketched" And Must Do Time For Chicken Stealing.

The first colored brother to go to the State penitentiary under the new Kentucky law making chicken stealing a felony is John Diamond, of the county of Garrard. The Court of Appeals having upheld the validity of the statute, the coon who shoulders his bag on dark nights and goes out for young pullets must be careful of just one thing in addition to keeping a lookout for dogs and guns—he must not carry away as much as two dollars' worth of fowl meat. In order to avoid doing this he must necessarily be well upon the price of spring and other chickens in his own community, and what they would be worth under oath in case he should be dragged into the courthouse to answer a charge. In no case must he go near the thoroughbred fowl that is worth anywhere from $5 to $100. Another branch prison in Kentucky will soon be needed if the law is enforced.

A SUFFERER FROM PILES

N. S. Wilbur, Secretary Louisville Base Ball Club, After Ten Years Suffering, Is Cured by Paracamp.

HAD TRIED MANY REMEDIES

N. S. Wilbur, the popular Secretary of the Louisville Base Ball Club, says:

"I was a sufferer from Chronic Piles for a period of ten years or more, and while I used practically all of the known remedies, I received no relief. One night while traveling my suffering became so intense that in desperation I used Paracamp, it being the only preparation that I had with me. I did not think for a moment that I would get relief, but in my condition was willing to try anything. Much to my surprise after the first application my suffering became less, I was able to go to sleep and when I awoke in the morning my pain was all gone. I applied Paracamp two or three times afterwards, not because I experienced any suffering but I feared a return of the pain.

I am glad to state, however, that the trouble has entirely disappeared and I believe myself, for the first time in over ten years cured.

I regard the effect of Paracamp in my case as simply wonderful. I could not have believed it possible for a remedy to do what it has done had it not been for my actual experience with the preparation."

Paracamp positively does not contain anything that will injure the most delicate skin. It is a clean, safe, cooling, soothing, application that every one can use every day with pleasing and satisfactory results.

A trial will convince you. So get a bottle of Paracamp to-day from your druggist. We guarantee every bottle to give satisfaction. If it fails to do what we claim, go back to your druggist, the man you know, and get your money.

Sold only in 25c, 50c and $1.00 bottles.—The Paracamp Company, Louisville, Ky., U. S. A.

Profit In Pure-Breds

MANY farmers have discovered says Charles Anige in the County Gentleman, that there is money in poultry-raising, but the greater majority still believe that it is a branch of farming too insignificant to demand attention, and turn this department over to the women. Quite often the women of the family discover in their reading, that there are possibilities in poultry-keeping, and astonish the superior man with the financial return. As a matter of fact, although he would not admit it, many a farmer has found the poultry money very handy to meet some obligation. If any farmer who has no faith in poultry as profitable stock should turn what he has over to his wife or daughter, on the understanding that she may have for her own use what poultry she can make out of the venture, he would in the majority of cases be very anxious to be taken into partnership in a short time, for his wife or daughter would demonstrate to his satisfaction that poultry-raising means more than mere pin money.

But keep only pure stock. The mongrel breeds are entirely too plentiful in many sections; this is due to the crossing nuisance. The idea is prevalent that by crossing the breeds the fowls will be better and the layers more vigorous, combining the good qualities of two or more breeds. This is not the case. Indiscriminate crossing will destroy many of the good qualities of the breeds, and the sooner it is done away with the better for the farmers and poultrymen. The best results are obtained by sticking to pure breeds, and crossing should be done only along certain lines. A mongrel or barnyard fowl is one that has resulted from haphazard mating for years. Each year these birds become more and more mixed, until finally there is no telling to what breed their ancestors belonged.

Why is the pure-bred fowl better than the mongrel? The reasons are many. For one, you can always depend on the pure-bred for uniform growth. Take a mongrel hen and her chickens will vary. They never grow fast, and one or two in the bunch will be ready for market two months before the others. Not only that, the pure-bred are uniform in looking after dressing, and sell higher on the market for breeding and hatching purposes. Their eggs and themselves always sell higher than the market price for either. Persons raising the pure-breds exclusively in this country must keep all their eggs from early spring until the hatching season is over to supply the demand for the eggs; and now, since incubators are so useful and common, those who want eggs often order many weeks ahead in order to get all they need. Another reason is that the mongrel hen averages at the best about 40 eggs per year. The pure-bred laying breeds with the worst given will lay over a hundred eggs, and with moderate attention I have known them to lay very close to two hundred eggs per year.

What is needed is to bring our pure breeds up to the highest type of hardiness, utility and beauty, and then for the poultry farmer to use only the fowls that are strictly pure in blood. Until then poultry-raising will be more or less an uncertainty.

When good blood is used we see success in all branches of live stock. Blood is the foundation of success. In all established business the best is what must be secured for foundation. Mongrel hens may answer for some owners, but the best is the cheapest in the long run, and those who would prosper in the future poultry business must produce the best for breeding.

As a rule you cannot buy a breeder's best birds, unless he raises them in large numbers and has more good birds than he needs for his own breeding pens—birds fully as good as he has selected for his own use. It is an honest breeder you can buy eggs for hatching from his best pens, and the chances are you can raise birds just as good as his best, at a small cost. Start right by saving only the best eggs from the selected hens for incubation, the most prolific layers. The cost of pure-bred fowls to commence with will be little, and they will prove more profitable than the common or cross-bred kinds.

The Buff Cochins

THE old saying that a scratching hen lays the eggs I have found to be the truth. I believe that a Cochins hen should be made to scratch a little just the same as the rest of them, and I also think that a scratching shed is one of the best additions that was ever put onto a hen-house, for when the cold, bleak, snowy days of winter comes they need a scratching shed to keep them busy, so that they may keep warm and happy, thereby increasing the egg production. It is necessary to keep Cochins hens working a little as they will get too fat, which is sure to decrease the egg yield. Cochins are naturally a little bit on the lazy order, but why should that be charged up against them as a fault, for by not running around so much as some of her cousins, she also requires less feed, and when fed the right kind of material in the right way it will mostly go into the egg yields, as it does not require all your feed to keep up her general condition.

Some people object to the Buff Cochins on account of the leg and foot feathering, and, when asked the reason, state that it looks bad when they are running around in the snow and mud in bad weather. Well, I want to state right here, and I think most of the readers of this small article will agree with me, that the man who wants or lets his chickens, feathers or no feathers, run around in the snow and mud is a mighty poor manager, as this can be easily overcome by providing the scratching shed for just such kind of weather.

For a town lot, I believe the Buff Cochins can be raised more successfully than any other chicken. They are not all the time running around the fence trying to get out, and more can be raised on the same amount of ground than some of the smaller breeds as they are always contained wherever you put them. A fence three or three and a half feet high will easily confine either old or young fowls of the breed. I think this one item alone must be an important factor with our friends, for it is undoubtedly a lot of satisfaction to know that, when you put your fowls into a pen they will stay and not be a menace to your neighbor's garden, thus causing trouble with those who do not keep fowls.

For winter egg production the Buff Cochins is one of the best. They need no poles to roost upon, but bedded down upon straw they keep warm, and their combs are not apt to get frozen, and they are not liable to get colds or croup as the drafts, if there is any, usually passes over their heads. I have always argued that when it comes to egg production there is particularly do best breed, for all hens are created to lay eggs, but, of course different breeds suit different conditions, and all you have to do is to bring about the condition that best suits the breed you handle, and then I think the problem will be about solved. Of course, we hear upon all sides that the Leghorn is the best for egg production, but I think the reason for this assertion is the Leghorns require little or no attention. They are thrifty and look out for themselves. I suppose you could take a dozen Leghorns behind turn them loose in the woods for a while without any food and you will get a few eggs, but put them up in close confinement and see how many eggs you get unless you feed them well. On the other hand, the Buff Cochins comes under the opposite condition. They will lay more eggs in confinement than if they were given the range of a hundred-acre farm. I will admit that if a man must raise chickens and has not much time to give to them, he had better raise some other breed. But on the other hand, if he will give his Cochins hens a little time and care the results will be highly satisfactory.

The Cnchin hen is naturally gentle and makes the best of mothers, and I think, the Buff Cochins as bred to-day is away ahead of those we had ten years ago, both in shape, coloring and feathering. This is bound to produce more admirers of this grand old fowl which has helped to furnish blood in the development of many new breeds we have now.—E. H. Swain, in Exchange.

Tutt's Pills

FOR TORPID LIVER.

A torpid liver deranges the whole system, and produces SICK HEADACHE, Dyspepsia, Costiveness, Rheumatism, Sallow Skin and Piles. There is no better remedy for these common diseases than DR. TUTT'S LIVER PILLS, as a trial will prove. Take No Substitute.

Work For the Fowls.

A lazy fowl is not profitable, and one way to make the birds lazy is to overfeed them. Overfeeding leads to many vices, and some diseases occur mostly where the birds have been pampered. The blood of birds is warmer than that of animals, and as soon as they are overfed they take on fat very readily, the result being that they die from vertigo, or become subject to liver disease, especially fatty degeneration. The feeding should be so as to keep the hens at work by scratching, and if a few grains of wheat or corn are buried in the ground in litter, the hens will industriously work for them, an excellent plan being to scatter millet seed in litter, or even on the surface of the ground. The object should be to feed less concentrated food and make potatoes, grass or other bulky material serve the purpose, as the hens prefer foods which contain all the elements necessary for promoting laying. Lean meat, blood and animal meal are valuable additions to the grain and bulky foods.—Poultry Journal.

Our contest began Nov. 15th and will continue for 6 months; to May 15.

Advertises for a Wife.

A man in Warren county has this "ad." in the Bowling Green News, which we reproduce one time gratis. "I want to marry and I want a blue-eyed and light haired girl, also fair complexion and one from 16 to 22 years of age. I am not very rich, but think that I can make a living all right, and I want a woman that can cook and do her own work. My address is J. C. Flora, Richardsville, Warren county, Ky."

HAND IN AN AD.

City Directory Will Not Be Issued Unless Business Men Want It.

The City Directory for 1909 is now ready to be put in type. It is a very complete directory, and will be the best ever published in the city. The cost of publication is not to be published at a loss.

The city has not had a directory since 1899 and there is urgent need for a new one that will show the rapid growth and numerous changes in the city. It is a public enterprise in a great measure and the business men should be willing to help make its publication possible. The canvass is now being made and advertisements are solicited at very reasonable rates, ranging from $1.00 for professional cards up to $7.50 for a full page. The book sells at $1.00.

AMUSEMENTS.

The Nashville Students will be the attraction at Holland's Opera House Wednesday night, Feb. 6. A Topeka, Kansas, paper says of their appearance in that city:

"The Nashville Students gave a very creditable performance at Brooks' opera house last night. The company was thoroughly high class of its kind. The entertainment was clean, wholesome and amusing throughout. Harry Lowery did some nice work on the cornet, and the band supporting him was excellent. 'The Holy City,' played by request, was exquisitely beautiful and appealed to a large per cent. of the listeners. Ten very pleasant minutes were occupied by San Lucas. His humor is contagious, clearly sincere and up to date, and he can look you steady in the eye while he talks.

Pearl Crawford has a high and very powerful soprano voice. She sang 'My Old Cabin Home' and 'Good Bye, Old Cabin Home,' with characteristic pathos. None of the company appeared to more advantage than Harry Crosby, both as father of the musicians and as the supposed African prince. Anna Crosby was also especially good.

FEMALE ATHELETE

Coming to America to Vanquish Wrestlers.

America is soon to enjoy the thrills of a new season—a genuine woman wrestler, Juno May, who is just now stirring things up for the edification of the London Johnnies. She is only twenty-two, but tips the beam at over 250, and six feet two in height. So confident is the athletic young woman in her ability as a wrestler that she is willing to wager $5,000 that she can beat any woman in the world. She will also wrestle any man not over 165 in weight.

Juno says she began wrestling while a schoolgirl of thirteen. She liked it so well she has kept at it ever since, despite the objections of her parents. She wrestles in Graco-Roman style, and so far has had an easy victory over all the women who have dared to face her on the mat. She has also been successful in most of her matches against men.

Strangely enough, Juno is not at all fond of outdoor sports, and depends entirely upon gymnasium work to keep in condition for her matches.

Quinn Moore Still Disabled

Quinn Moore, the Christian county man wounded in the Sargis fight Dec. 24, is still in a bad condition and is not confined in jail at Morgantown, but is under guard in the jailer's home and has to pay $400 for guards. He is threatened with septic poison in his leg. An operation will be necessary to drain the wound.

BUILDINGS AND GROUND

Will Make an Attractive Exposition City.

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 20. On the southern shores of the Chesapeake Bay, a city of 100,000 people, the city of Norfolk, Va., is preparing to make an attractive exposition city. The city is now being built up with a marvelous speed, and what was only a year ago, an attractive laid out park, has become an Exposition beautiful, with immense exhibit places, State and Government buildings, all under roof, and for the most part of permanent construction. The auditorium and convention hall, one of the principal buildings of the exposition, is entirely complete and is being used temporarily for the offices of the governor of works of the exposition and his able corps of assistants, who are carrying on the work with much credit.

The State's exhibit palace, the largest and most imposing structure on the grounds, containing more than 350,000 square feet of exhibit space, is also complete, and will be turned over by the contractors in a few days to the Exposition Company at which time the installation of the various exhibits of the resources of the different states will begin.

The commercial pier of the exposition, extending out into Hampton Roads for a distance of some 2,000 feet, was finished several weeks ago, and is now being used to bring in the construction material for the many buildings now in the course of erection.

MORE LIGHT.

City Light Co. Have Put in New Arc Lights.

Since the destruction of the plant of the City Light Co. by the flood of Nov. 20th the company has been hard at work putting in its new machinery and arc lights. Incandescents have been doing service, and though far from satisfactory, the company has done the best possible under the circumstances.

The company has lost a great deal of money, but it had the nerve and backbone to meet its reverses. During the two months that have passed it has not only put in its new machinery, but new arc lights have been purchased to take the place of the rather ancient and unsatisfactory ones. The company tested the new lights Tuesday night and they were as good as could be expected for the initial service. But it is due to the company to say that, owing to the continued heavy demand for electrical machinery, part of its purchase has not yet been received, and though the street lights are now much brighter, it will not be long before the company will give us as good light as is furnished anywhere.

WORTH A TRIAL.

Farmer Buries Meat to Remove a Taint.

A Westport, Tenn., farmer gave a test to the old saying that to bury meat that had soured because of warm weather and let it remain buried a few days, would remove the taint and prevent its loss. He found his hams and shoulders soured and started to throw them away when his wife suggested that he bury them. He did so and let them remain in the earth nearly two weeks. Since the recent cold spell he has taken them up and finds them perfectly sound, with no tainted taste, and he is certain he has saved his meat by the experiment.

Breeds Fine Dogs.

Jellico, Tenn., Jan. 25. H. P. Ware, Hopkinsville, Ky., Prince Whitestone won championship. Lanark runner up. T. T. PACE.

The above telegram to Mr. Harry P. Ware tells of the success of a noted hunting dog closely related to one of the dogs. He showed a small pup this week on an order from a northern purchaser who was looking for a hunting dog.
